

Pat Andrews

This remarkable lady has been an active member of the Birmingham community for all her adult life, teaching at Pierce, Quarton, and Midvale elementary schools prior to retirement.

As an active senior, she is an inspiration to all and her love of Birmingham is evident. Look no further than her garage that she refurbished into a neighborhood museum. Ask her about Birmingham politics and she will engage you in a detailed conversation. Her love for the neighborhood children is evident as they are frequent visitors to her home.

Painting of Patricia Andrews by Bonita Bohl

Pat Andrews at the dedication of the Hill School Bell and in period costume in the Hunter House.

Why I was inspired: A history of Birmingham MUST include 96-year-old resident Patricia Andrews. The April 2016 publication of Birmingham Living accurately stated: Patricia is the "undisputed, unequalled, unofficial historian of all things Birmingham".

--Submitted by Bonita Bohl