

BIRMINGHAM HISTORICAL MUSEUM & PARK

Gardens Volunteer

The museum maintains an educational and interpretive garden of heirloom vegetable plants near the Hunter House. The garden helps demonstrate to passers-by and program participants the value of keeping a visible vegetable garden at a historic site. The Gardens Volunteer has an important role in maintaining a valuable part of our programming and public face.

Duties include:

- Develop planting scheme in coordination with the Museum Director
- Work with a team to research, select, and plant appropriate heirloom vegetables and herbs according to developed plan
- Work with a team to provide regular care, weeding, and maintenance of garden throughout growing season
